Stormy Days

I am writing this as we wait and anticipate the Blizzard of 2015, a snow storm that is predicted to begin later this evening, Monday, into Wednesday morning, bringing us up to 30 inches of snow. Of course, like most of you, I am praying that a mighty wind will come to blow this storm out to sea. Such storms strike fear into us, concerns for our safety and well-being. Storms like these force us to change plans for work, school, appointments, travel, and such. It is best if we plan and stay home, of course. It is my prayer that the Lord will watch over all of us during the storm and keep us safe.

Of course, there are other kinds of storms that we face which strike fear into us, causing us to change our plans, and life directions.

I am reminded of how Jesus calmed the storm, as is recorded in Matthew 8:23-27. Jesus was asleep in the boat with his disciples when a "furious storm" came upon them. The disciples, afraid, cried out, "Lord save us. We are going to drown." Jesus woke, chastised the disciples, "You of little faith. Why are you afraid?" Then, he rose, calmed the storm and wind. The disciples were left to wonder, "What kind of man is this? Even the winds and waves obey him."

Today, we cry out to the Lord to help us through many kinds of storms. We cry out to the Lord on behalf of each other. Together, we gather to help to give strength and hope to each other. When our own faith is weak, we can turn to another whose faith is strong to strengthen us through the storms we face. This is the nature of the church community at its best.

Even the strongest of us will face storms and need the love and help of others who God sends our way to help us through the times when we are buffeted by powerful winds that knock us about. The call of God comes to us to be available to each other in such times so that we can help each other through the storms. We are to be available simply through our presence in worship so that we can keep up with what is going on in each others' lives. I witness this every week as I see us sharing our woes, lending support and encouragement.

God also calls us to be available through our kindness, by feeding the poor, giving thanks, caring for those who are alone, praying for peace, forgiving, and sharing our time and resources so that others see through the storm.

Sometimes I get these feelings and/or thoughts about someone and sometimes I follow up through a phone call, only to find that the feeling, the thought, was not a coincidence, but, an act of God's Spirit calling out to me to take action and reach out. So many times when I have had these feelings, I have discovered something that I did not know, that made it important for me to make the call, and, it was greatly appreciated.

A close friend of mine calls these things "God's winking" at us through random thoughts and dreams. She also says that, as a result of these, we are called to be "God's hands, ears, eyes, and heart" for each other, blessings to each other in and through the storms we face.

This past week someone emailed me to remind me of something special going on in the life of two of our parishioners. I greatly appreciated it, giving me the nudge I needed to share these special things with others, bringing joy.

I pray that Jesus brings calm to the storms you face. Let us help you by letting us know what it is you are facing, and, together, we will see it through, the Lord giving us what we need to bring calm to the wind and waves.

I give thanks to God for all of those who have brought calm to me in the midst of the storms I have faced.

Yours in Christ, Dennis

This summer, a group from Centre Church volunteered with Habitat for Humanity at 100 Parker Street in Lawrence, where a former convent is being renovated into 10 condominium units. We have committed to February 7 and March 7. Please contact Barbara Langill in the church office if you would like to participate on one or both of these dates. If you are unable to volunteer at the work site, but would be willing to provide a hot meal for the group, please let me know. Youth must be 16 years or older to volunteer.
