Milestones

We've moved! For those of you that I haven't seen over the summer, Mike and I are now residents of Andover and I am, as you all are probably sick of hearing, enjoying my shorter commute immensely! We are still up to our eyeballs, at least in the garage, in boxes, and only time and effort will get us through all of them and get things truly settled. In our last Tower Notes, I wrote about holding on and letting go and all of the purging of stuff that happened with our move. Well, that continues as we think about what fits where, what else we need to let go of, and what new things we might need to make our new spaces work for us. While we were rushed to accomplish much in order to sell our house, now we can take our time and really reflect and be patient, so that we can make good choices that support our life now.

Some of you have heard me share that we sold our Nashua house to a young man who grew up in the house and whose father actually built it. While we had been communicating with him since May, it was lovely to finally meet him in person as we closed on the house last Friday. I have to admit I was a little bit worried for him. I wanted to make sure that amidst all the nostalgia and memories, he was prepared to live his life forward in the house while honoring its whole history, including the two other families who have called it home. I am now confident that he is and he will! I believe that honoring our past is important and that we can learn from our own and others' stories. I also believe that we need to do so in the spirit of living fully today and tomorrow.

Fall is a time of milestones. The new school year is beginning and parents are taking "First Day of ___ Grade" photos of their kids. New backpacks, new supplies, new expectations. College students are off to learn and live, taking solid steps into adulthood. And here at Centre Church, our new program year is about to start while Laraine and I both celebrate our first anniversary with you. During September, we'll welcome everyone back on Sunday, the 16th. Then, on Sunday, September 23rd we'll have our Annual Meeting when we'll review the milestones of the last year and share our hopes for the new year. I am excited as we continue to live out our covenantal relationships with God, with each other, with the wider Church, and with the communities around us. What might God be calling us to this year? How might God use you for spreading the good news? Let's find out together!

In hope,

Rev. Nancy
